The Ultimate Den Day!

Chris Harman from The Den Experiment

Engage your pupils with this exciting project!

These one day workshops are designed for one, two or three classes (approx. 30 pupils per class) from KS1 and KS2. The activities take place outdoors, with the pupils working together in teams to design and build a den.

The den building process will also enable your pupils to develop their team work, organisational and communication skills. Both of these workshops can be adapted to the school environment and current topics.

Chris will tailor the theme of the den building to suit the area of the curriculum that the children are learning about. In the past this has included: Knights and Castles, Stone Age Settlements, a den 'Dome Maths Challenge', Outdoor Survival, Geography topics and even building dens to create a space for storytelling. However, this is not a finite list and Chris can accommodate most topics.

What the school needs to provide:

- Chris will provide all the equipment required for the day.
- A teacher or member of staff will need to stay present with the class for the duration of the workshop.

Cost:

Number of classes working together	Cost
1	£300
2	£400
3	£450

Chris Harman is a Leeds based artist who specialises in sculpture. His own work is based on the concept of dens and building. Chris is professionally trained with a First Class Honours Degree in Art & Design and he has experience of teaching and engaging with a range of audiences. Chris has run den building projects in over 300 schools and has also delivered workshops with Leeds Art Gallery, The Hepworth Wakefield, English Heritage and Yorkshire Sculpture Park.
