

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school’s priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for schools in Leeds, Wakefield and York - 30 September – Leeds

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We’re offering schools in Wakefield, York and Leeds an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region’s arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at Leeds West Academy from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools’ own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you’ll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event – click here

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school’s priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for schools in Bradford, Kirklees and Calderdale – 8 October – Huddersfield Library

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We’re offering schools in Bradford, Calderdale and Kirklees an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region’s arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at Huddersfield Library on 8 October from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools' own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you'll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event – click here

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school's priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for schools in Doncaster, North East Lincs and North Lincs – 19 October – Doncaster

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We're offering schools in Doncaster, North Lincs and North East Lincs an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region's arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at the Mary Woollett Centre on 19 October from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools' own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you'll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event – click here

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school's priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for schools in Hull and East Riding – 13 October – Hull

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We're offering schools in Hull and East Riding an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region's arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at Bridgeview Whitehouse School, Hull, HU4 7AD on 13 October from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools' own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you'll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event – click here

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school's priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for North Yorkshire schools – 7 October – Skipton

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We're offering schools in North Yorkshire an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region's arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at Skipton Girls High School on 7 October from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools' own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you'll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event click here

A new school year, a new-look Artsmark – get an exclusive preview of how it will help you meet your school’s priorities and meet arts and cultural practitioners too

Free event – Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace for schools in Sheffield, Rotherham and Barnsley – 22 October – Rotherham

October sees the launch of a totally revamped Artsmark award from Arts Council England which will help your school target priorities in your school development plan with support from arts and cultural organisations and practitioners.

We’re offering schools in Sheffield, Barnsley and Rotherham an exclusive preview of the new-look Artsmark and the chance to meet some of the region’s arts and cultural organisations at our Artsmark Briefing and Marketplace event at the Rockingham Centre, Rotherham on 22 October from 4pm to 6pm.

The new Artsmark has been designed with teachers to support connections with schools’ own strategies and is aligned with the National Curriculum and planning cycles. For those who have achieved Artsmark before the biggest difference you’ll see is that Artsmark is now forward looking rather than being an audit of past work. Feedback from pilot schools who tested the new process last term has been very positive.

After the briefing session there will be a marketplace where you can meet with arts and cultural organisations and practitioners and discuss your needs and find new ways of working together to achieve your aims.

Places are limited so to book your place at this FREE event – click here